

Recycling Problems

Student C

Do you know what happens if you don't recycle. People should recycle.

Trash takes up landfill space for example: Not just plastic garbage is thrown on the ground but is thrown into the ocean and kills as many as 100,000 sea creatures. If you don't believe it go to the ocean and see for yourself and see all the garbage .Did you know people in America use 250,000,000 plastic bottles every hour.

Recycling helps end pollution. For example: if people in America just could recycle just one tenth of their newspaper they can save about 250,000,000 trees every year. Americans use 85,000,000 tons of paper every year, about 680 pounds per person just in America.

Recycling allows us to reuse materials for example if people recycle their newspaper people could save about 250,000,000 trees each year .people use 80,000,000,000 aluminum pop cans each year. Every week for the Sunday newspapers 500,000 trees cut down. People should recycle aluminum pop cans and recycle your Sunday newspaper.

Everyone needs to recycle because trash takes up land fills space recycling helps end pollution .And recycling allows us to reuse material. To do your part, think before you throw paper or plastic to the garbage can because it may not get recycled. You can make something out of it or throw it into the recycling bin and give it to a recycling program!

A Solitary Blue

Have you ever missed someone really close to you, who cares about you? In A Solitary Blue By: Cynthia Voigt, the main character, Jeff, is very lonely and misses his mom.

Jeff went to his room and sobbed himself to sleep, because his mom is leaving him while he visited her in Charleston. For example, "When Jeff was at last alone in his room that night, he lay across the bed and cried. He didn't even take off his clothes or turn on the light." (page 106)

Jeff was longing to see his mom in Charleston, for the second time. Furthermore, Jeff is very eager, and he is asking his father, the professor, when he could leave and if he could bring his guitar, that the professor gave him for Christmas.

On Jeff's second visit to Charleston, he finds out his mom lied to Gambo, his great grandmother about going on a vacation. Jeff doesn't miss her much anymore, and gets lonelier and sad. For example, in the text it says, "Don't lie to me, I don't believe you. If you really cared you'd have stayed here and you wouldn't be going away tomorrow and lying to Gambo about it." (Page 116)

In A Solitary Blue by: Cynthia Voigt, Jeff is very sad and wishes his mom hadn't left him to live in Charleston. Jeff was very upset when his mom left him while he was visiting her in Charleston and he always looks forward to seeing his mom. On Jeff's second visit to Charleston, he found out his mom was lying to him. So, don't lie to someone that is close to you.
